

— a garden of feelings, given form —

Some things grow only in the quiet. This is where you come to sit with them.

A gallery for the experiences we were told to keep small. Tended slowly. Walked at your own pace. You are not behind. You are not too much. You are exactly on time for being here.

WALK THE GARDEN

WHY I MADE THIS

"some things heal in their own season."

a little about this garden

Nothing here is meant to shock you, or pull you under.

Every piece is drawn from a real experience. Many of them ones I lived, and many that friends and readers asked me to give shape to. None of them are here to perform pain. They are here to keep company.

Walk slowly. Skip what doesn't call to you. Linger where it does. The garden will be here when you come back.

the beds

Pieces grouped by what they hold, not what they hurt.

Each bed is a small room of feeling. Open the one that fits the day. There is no order. There is no graduation.

the slow bed

Identity & Becoming

12 PIECES

the quiet bed

Grief & Loss

8 PIECES

the soft bed

Anxiety

the tender bed

Chronic Pain

6 PIECES

the slow-growing bed

Healing

9 PIECES

plant a seed

If something you've lived hasn't been given form yet, tell the garden about it.

Not every seed becomes a piece, but every seed is held. You don't need the right words. You only need to begin.

YOUR NAME (A FIRST NAME IS PLENTY)

Anonymous is welcome

WHERE CAN I WRITE YOU BACK, GENTLY?

behind the mask
your@email.com

SHARE A STORY

WHAT WOULD YOU LIKE TO SEE GROW INTO A PIECE?

Take your time. A few sentences is enough.

PLANT THE SEED

behind the mask

A garden of feelings, given form. Tended slowly. Walked at your own pace.

SIT

About

Plant a Seed

Connect

WALK

The Garden

Newest Pieces

All Beds

QUIET

Privacy

Terms

Contact

© Behind the Mask. Tended with care.

you are welcome here